

Danmarks Nationalbank issues new 50-krone banknote

The first banknote in the new series will be issued on Tuesday, 11 August 2009. It is the 50-krone banknote, which has the Sallingsund Bridge as its face motif. The new banknote series is described in more detail on Danmarks Nationalbank's website, www.nationalbanken.dk, under "Notes and Coins".

In this connection, Danmarks Nationalbank has received requests for the first banknotes in the new series, i.e. banknotes with low numbers from the first edition. It has therefore been decided to reserve the first banknotes for interested parties.

Low numbers

The banknotes will have sequence no. A0xxxx. The sequence number is in the lower right-hand corner. The individual serial numbers of the banknotes are stated on the left-hand side just below the denomination. It should be noted that the serial number is six digits followed by a letter. While several banknotes will have the same combination of digits, the end letter will vary, making the serial number unique. The serial numbers will indicate that the banknotes are from the first batch.

It will not be possible to order specific numbers. The banknotes are distributed as orders are received. The banknotes are supplied in acid-free plastic pockets.

Last edition of old 50-krone banknote

In addition, 50-krone banknotes of the last edition of the current series can be ordered. These banknotes have sequence number B6xxxx. The banknotes are supplied in acid-free plastic pockets together with the description distributed when the banknote was first issued in 1999.

Sales open on 10 August 2009 at 12:00 noon

The banknotes can be ordered at the website of Royal Danish Mint, www.royalmint.dk. Sales open on Monday, 10 August at 12:00 noon.

Both new and old 50-krone banknotes will be sold at face value. To cover the considerable administration involved a handling fee of kr. 200 including VAT will be charged per order - in the same way as for sales of Faroese banknotes. Orders are limited to a maximum of 10 banknotes, but may contain a combination of banknotes from the old, the new series and the Faroese series.
